

Copyright, Intellectual Property, and Fair Use

Copyright and intellectual property issues are raised throughout the ITGS course. The following articles and web sites are useful for supporting and extending learning:

Copyright and Fair Use Overview (Stanford) addresses many Frequently Asked Questions related to intellectual property, copyright, fair use, and the public domain.

Teaching Copyright is operated by the Electronic Frontier Foundation (EFF) and contains a lot of valuable information. The Copyright FAQs are very useful.

A number of solutions have been proposed to combat online media piracy, including disconnecting file sharers, controversial letter campaigns, and compelling Internet Service Providers \(ISPs\) to block sites such as The Pirate Bay.

Digital Rights Management \(DRM\) technologies are also used on a range of media from DVDs to eBooks.
